Welcome readers. My hopes are as you read this book as well as the others that I have passionately written will find a special place in your heart and soul to help heal your pet loss journey. I love helping people like you during this very difficult time. Love, Wendy

As a dog lover twenty times over, I've lost several pets along the way and so reading this book was very difficult. BUT, it is a rare find because there are almost no books on this topic to help people through the pain of losing a pet. I agree with the author Wendy Van de Poll that dogs are there to enrich our lives with love. They just want to give and we give back to them too. But the sad reality is, dogs have a shorter life span than people. Much shorter and some are shorter than others. So when you come home from the vet after they have informed you your "loved one" doesn't have long to live, it can be heartbreaking. But this book is meant to help you with that pain when nobody else can. Only a dog lover can understand what another dog lover is going through. That is why this book matters and why you need it if you have a dog. I fortunately have two healthy dogs at the moment but there will come a day when that will end. When it does, I hope that the powerful words of hope and inspiration found in this book can carry me through. I definitely recommend this gem to anyone with a pet dog, healthy or not, because you never know when you are going to need this kind of support.

This book is written with kindness and love which is just what we need when going through such a difficult time. I liked the fact that I could dive right in and get the support and guidance I needed. There are words to help you understand and deal with feelings of grief, words to help you make the most of the time with your dog and ensure you are doing everything to care for them and to celebrate their life and words to help you heal. I liked the case studies throughout the book. They showed me that others have been through what I am going through and they found a way to live through it and even experience moments of joy. I also liked the contemplation questions at the end of each chapter which gave me a chance to explore my feelings and understand that they are normal for me. One of the toughest things about saying goodbye to your dog is knowing when is the right time to let go. Wendy helps you figure this out and provides guidance on final day preparation. This is such a difficult subject but written with understanding. My favourite thing was the way Wendy guides you to enjoy your remaining time with your dog and gives you tools to do so. Thank you Wendy for writing such a thoughtful and necessary book.

Even though I'm a cat owner, Wendy Van de Poll's book is filled with such compassion it transcends the animal. In her book, she gives people permission to grieve over their pets and deftly shows them how to have a plan in place for before, during and after death. Ms. Van de Poll clearly loves animals and helping people at this tender and difficult time. I highly recommend this book for anyone who has a sick pet or knows someone who does.

Wendy Van Poll wrote a book that changed the way I look at people who are having issues losing a pet. This is a very sensitive and helpful book for anyone going through or preparing to go through grief. It is gentle and caring. Thank you, Wendy!

Wendy Van de Poll is an amazing writer. I found her book to be very helpful with how to live and cherish every moment while going through such a difficult time in your life, to find peace and joy admits the chaos that comes with caring for an ill pet or through the grieving process. Wendy has been there for me personally when my cat suddenly passed away and I will always be truly grateful. Knowing that you are not alone, there is someone there to listen and give you the tools to go through your process of grieve. I sent her book to many of my friends who are going through this tight now and they say it was a God send. I would recommend this book to every pet owner because there will come that day when our best friend is leaving us and to go through it with love and honor is the highest gift you can give your pet. Mary Kolly

Wendy provides valuable tools to help you with the grieving process while your pet is still alive. It was a relief to know that there is a light at the end of the tunnel, no matter how dim it seems. This helped me through my extreme grief and to understand it was normal. My only critique would be that her case studies were too short. I wanted to commiserate with the people cited in the book but it fell short of providing that opportunity. I look forward to the second book now that my beloved best friend has passed.

I wish I had this book years ago when we lost our German Shepherd at 7 years young. I was going through a lot of emotions and I could really identify with the case studies presented in this book. This author does a wonderful job of identifying and explaining the grieving process and offers many helpful solutions in helping someone cope with this tragic situation, both before and after your pet's passing. Thanks to this book, I feel I'm better prepared to deal with pet grief. Excellent book!

This book is a must read for anyone facing the loss of a four legged family member. Having lost 4 pets to terminal illnesses I wish this book had been available for those journeys. Wendy thoughtfully lays out what to expect in the journey and how to deal with the emotions and questions that arise. Her "Contemplation Questions" at the end of each chapter help you think about and explore your emotions in a way that is really not possible without a book like this. Although the journey is difficult, Wendy also points out the places to find joy in the process and how to make the most of the time you have with your four legged family member. Thank you Wendy!
