Customer Reviews

PreSchool-Grade 1 "In this easy early, early reader, Alfie, a crocodile, sends his grandma a letter that says, "I love you. Please write back." And then he waits. And asks the mailman. And waits. That's the entire plot. With the appeal of a bright green croc that has expressive eyes and the concept of sending and receiving mail, this book is bound to capture the interest of youngsters. They can read the letter and the address on the envelope, and enjoy the crocodile stamp. Grandma's reply finally comes "inside a box filled with cookies. The book is perfect for its intended audience. There is good repetition in the text for early reinforcement and the pictures are just delightful." Praise for MAY I PLEASE HAVE A COOKIE?: For kids just starting to read, this cheerful title in the Scholastic Reader series is a combination of very simple sentences and bright, clear, colorful illustrations. Kids will like the cozy story and the endearing alligator characters.--Booklist

My kids love it, especially after having read "may I please have a cookie"

My child can't sit through a book with too many words on a page at a time so this is great for him!

My daughter is 3 and she loves these books.

Jennifer Morris is for sure one of our favorite children's authors. As are all her books, Please Write Back is heartwarming and gives children a great scenario for appreciation of the feelings of others and personal reliability. Adorable illustrations. After purchasing this book we immediately looked for more by Ms Morris. Thanks for improving children's interest in reading and emotional development with the same sweet little book

Perfect book for my 3.5 yr old. She likes to recite the phrases and sentences from the book.

Easy reading for a first grader. Pictures are engaging and the story was cute.

These books are great for a preschooler. Holds their attention

My granddaughter in kindergarten loves this book, one of her favorites. This one & the "cookie" book she can read by herself from memory she's read it so many times.
